“ God knew when he moved our family to Bedford Co that he wasn't just providing us with a home, but placing us next door to the definition of good neighbors. Mr. Apple was my personal neighborhood watch. I knew that whenever I sent my three kids outside that Mr. Apple would soon follow if the weather allowed. He answered several doorbell calls from my kids, because if he wasn't already outside, they were going to make sure he came out to be with him. He spent hours throughout the last 6 years with my kids. He gave them matchbox cars, spent time walking behind them in the yard, shadowed them climbing trees, and even scolded them when it was rightfully needed. I personally feel deeply that a relationship is the best gift you could ever have, and I'm thankful for the time he invested in my kids. I'm thankful for him and Mrs. Apple allowing our kids to claim their yards as our own, and for allowing them to pick flowers with permission. Recently, Mr. Apple was upset with the kids, and he didn't shy away from telling me. I apologized and reassured him I'd take care of it. He made sure to tell me, even with how upset he was, "Now, don't keep the kids out of my yard. I like watching them." That was Mr. Apple. He was part of my village in raising up these kids of mine. He was also an encourager, and often paid me compliments in my parenting. We are just so heartbroken over this loss. He will forever be apart of my kids childhood core memories, and we are incredibly blessed by the time we've had with him.
