“ Even though I am not blood, George was family to me. For many many years his home was always home to me and his door was always open whenever I came from New Orleans due to storms or just a visit... over the last few years I was able to spend some time at the farm when in town helping out where I could and really getting to know the great man that he was. Fly high my dear brother and RIP. You will be greatly missed and I am forever grateful to have been a part your family! Amy

“ During my high school years, I practically lived with the Cox family. George frequently gave Allen and me a well-deserved scolding however, there was much more love and laughter. George could build or repair anything, a skill he tried to teach me. I was not a good student, leading George to give me a nickname that quickly stuck. I was blessed to be around and included in the love that George shared with his family.
