“ Carter and I worked together for close to ten years before his well deserved retirement. He was always looked at highly amongst his peers not just because of his machining skills but how he carried himself. Humble and always well spoken. I always looked up to him as I think most everyone who luckily enough get the chance to get to know him. In fact I respected him so much that when I thought of the name Carter I thought dignified so I named my son Carter Ayers who now is in Basic Training in the Marine Corp and I'm very proud of.. Rest in peace Mr Williams. You left quite the impression on all that you came in contact with whether you knew it or not. Hope you've got a great fishing hole and tight line on the other side my friend.
