“ I had known Sharon since right before the family moved into their home on East Ferry. She and her husband were staying in a motel trying to get everything hooked up to move in and Frank was in a battle with the county over some red tape and I was in high school so everything was out of a can but they seemed to be really hungry. I felt so bad because she had a tiny baby and the other small boys . She was a really good seamstress and. ended up making my prom dress-it was a shimmering peach material-very silky and probably very hard to work with material. She also made a Christmas tree skirt with candy canes and mice that I still have and love!!!!!! The last few times I was in her house she always had paperback romance novels on the kitchen table and I used to take her old paperbacks from when I worked at Barnes and Noble. One day I had gone down there to take a shower because we were having some kind of temporary plumbing problem and I got a surprise-a ferret came out under the door and was staring at me in the bath, I assume he/she belonged to one of the boys.
